Britain's Starmer arrives in China as Western alliances face strain

BEIJING : (AGENCY)

Keir Starmer began the first visit to China by a British prime minister since 2018 on Wednesday, seeking to strengthen political and business ties with Beijing as relations between Western countries and the US become more volatile. Starmer, whose approach to China has been criticised by some British and US politicians, said Britain must remain vigilant about potential security threats but could not afford to ignore the opportunities presented by the world's second-largest economy. "It doesn't make sense to stick our head in the ground and bury it in the sand when it comes to China, it's in our interests to engage," he told reporters on the plane. "It's going to be a really important trip for us and we'll make some real progress."

and Premier Li Qiang on Thursday before travelling to Shanghai on Friday for talks with local executives. The visit could mark a shift in ties between Britain and China after years of deep acrimony over Beijing's crackdown on political freedoms in Hong Kong, China's support for Russia in the Ukraine war and allegations by British security services that China regularly spies on politicians and officials. For China, the visit offers the country a chance to portray itself as a stable and reliable partner at a time of global disorder. European and other Western countries have engaged in a flurry of diplomacy with China as they hedge against unpredictability from the United States under President Donald Trump. Starmer's trip follows tensions with Trump over his threats to seize Greenland, his criticism of Britain's deal to cede sovereignty of the Chagos Archipelago — including an island with a US-UK air base — to Mauritius, and his com-

Month after Iran protests began, worry and fear pervades Mideast over possible US strike

DUBAI : (AGENCY)

Iranian officials reached out to the wider Middle East on Wednesday over the threat of a possible US military strike on the country, a month since the start of protests in Iran that soon spread nationwide and sparked a bloody crackdown. Two nations, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, have signalled they won't allow their airspace to be used for any attack. But America has moved the USS Abraham Lincoln and several guided missile destroyers into the region, which can be used to launch attacks from the sea. It remains unclear what US President Donald Trump will decide about using force, though he laid down two red lines - the killing of peaceful demonstrators and the possible mass execution of detainees. The protests saw at least 6,221 people killed as Iran launched a bloody crackdown on the demonstrations, with many others feared dead, activists said Wednesday. Iran's state-run media, which now only refers to protesters as

"terrorists," remains the sole source of news for many as Tehran cut off access to the global internet some three weeks ago. But Iranians have become angry and anxious in the weeks since, seeing footage of protesters shot and killed while worrying about what may happen next as the country's economy sinks further. "I feel that my generation failed to give a better lesson to younger ones," said Mohammad Heidari, a 59-year-old high school teacher in Tehran. "The result of decades of teaching by my colleagues and me led to the deaths of thousands, and maybe more injured and prisoners." Egypt's Foreign Ministry said its top diplomat, Badr Abdellaty, separately spoke with Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi and US Mideast envoy Steve Witkoff to "work toward achieving calm, in order to avoid the region slipping into new cycles of instability." The statement offered no details, though Iranian state media quoted Araghchi as saying third-party mediators had been in touch. Witkoff, a billionaire real estate developer and Trump's friend, had earlier negotiated over Iran's nuclear program. There was no immediate acknowledgement from the White House of the call. Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman held a call with Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian, saying the lawyers said she "humbly accepts the court's stern criticism" and is "sorry for causing public concern". Supporters of Yoon and Kim, who braved freezing temperatures outside the court compound, cheered after the not-guilty verdicts on two of the charges were delivered. The Unification Church said it had not expected anything in return for the gifts. Its leader, Han Hak-ja, who is also on trial, has denied that she was attempting to bribe Kim.

South Korea court jails former first lady for bribery

Kim had drawn intense public scrutiny even before her husband was elected president in 2022 over questions about her academic record and lingering suspicion about stock price manipulation. Her alleged association with a political broker and a person known as a shaman also drew public criticism that the two may be unduly influencing the former first couple.

Yoon, who was ousted from power last April, faces eight trials on charges including insurrection, after his failed bid to impose martial law.

"It doesn't make sense to stick our head in the ground and bury it in the sand when it comes to China, it's in our interests to engage," he told reporters on the plane.

ments that NATO allies avoided front-line combat during the war in Afghanistan. On Saturday, Trump threatened to impose a 100% tariff on Canadian goods if that country's prime minister, Mark Carney, signed a trade deal with China. The UK leader insisted Britain could continue to strengthen economic ties with China — without angering Trump — because of his country's long history of working closely with the United States. "The relationship we have with the US is one of the closest relationships we hold, on defence, security, intelligence and also on trade and lots of areas," he said. "A person who was in such a position might not always be a role model, but the person must not be a bad example to the public," Woo In-sung said in the ruling. The court fined her 12.8 million won ($8,990) and ordered the confiscation of the necklace. Kim has been detained since August while under investigation. Prosecutors had demanded 15 years in jail and fines of 2.9 billion won if she was found guilty on all charges. The defendant, wearing a dark suit and a face mask, was escorted into the courtroom by guards and sat quietly while the verdict was delivered. A statement from Kim's
