#HerAtTheCore: INDIA'S WOMEN INVESTORS ARE RISING

In a month that celebrates women, we turn our lens to a quiet but powerful shift underway - one that is reshaping India's investment landscape.

Women in India are increasingly moving beyond traditional savings to become active participants in financial markets. From opening demat accounts to building long-term portfolios through mutual funds, their growing presence signals a more disciplined, resilient investor base.

At Vedanta, this evolution resonates with our "Her at the Core" philosophy, recognising the central role women play not just in communities and workplaces, but also in shaping financial futures.

A Surge in Participation

- +129% growth in women demat accounts since 2021
- 1 in 4 new investors in India is a woman

Capital with Conviction

- Women = 24% of investors, and 33% of AUM (Assets under Management)
- ~₹33 of every ₹100 in mutual funds is owned by women

Starting Earlier, Staying Longer

- ~80% start investing before age 35
- Strong preference for SIPs & long-term compounding

Financial Independence Is Rising

- 56% women now invest independently (vs 44% earlier)

COMMODITY WATCH

OIL & GAS: VOLATILITY RETURNS, REINFORCING ENERGY SELF-RELIANCE

Geopolitical tensions in the Middle East have reintroduced sharp volatility in global energy markets, disrupting nearly 20% of global oil flows and pushing crude prices to nearly $120/bbl.

For India, this presents a structural challenge. With ~88–90% import dependency and over 55% of crude sourced from the Middle East, supply shocks directly translate into macroeconomic pressure. Every $10 increase in crude oil prices can raise India's inflation by ~55–60 basis points, while widening the current account deficit and weighing on overall macro stability.

While strategic reserves provide a buffer of 74 days, the current environment reinforces a clear imperative: accelerate domestic production and reduce external reliance.

In this context, Vedanta plays a critical role, contributing ~25% of India's domestic oil & gas output, while scaling exploration across onshore and offshore assets to support long-term energy security.

ALUMINIUM: SUPPLY TIGHTNESS CREATES STRATEGIC TAILWINDS

Global aluminium markets have tightened, with Middle East disruptions and energy constraints impacting a region contributing 9% of global supply.

Prices have nearly touched $3,400/tonne range (LME), supported by constrained output and rising energy costs, which account for 30–40% of smelting expenses.

On the demand side, aluminium consumption is projected to grow ~3–4% annually, led by infrastructure, automotive, and energy transition sectors, including EVs and renewables.

India's aluminium demand is growing faster at 10% CAGR, driven by infrastructure expansion and manufacturing growth under the broader industrial upcycle.

By 2047, India's aluminium consumption is expected to rise sharply to nearly 37 MTPA, more than five times current levels, driven by rapid urbanisation, infrastructure development, and the expansion of clean energy and electric vehicle applications.

Vedanta, among the world's largest integrated aluminium producers (2.4 MTPA capacity), is advancing expansion plans, cost efficiencies, and low-carbon aluminium initiatives to capitalise on favourable market dynamics.

THE BIG PICTURE

From oil to metals, global supply disruptions are accelerating the shift towards self-reliance, making domestic resource development a strategic priority for India.

THE NEXT CHAPTER: VALUE CREATION THROUGH DEMERGER

Vedanta's demerger marks a strategic shift towards unleashing each business to operate at full potential, with the flexibility to scale, compete, and lead within its own market.

What This Enables:

Opportunity to invest in distinct, sector-focused businesses aligned to market opportunities

Strong leadership to take each business to the next phase of growth

Enhanced flexibility to scale and pursue growth opportunities

Driving long-term shareholder value, in line with Vedanta's growth and returns philosophy

STREET SIGNALS STRONG UPSIDE

Vedanta continues to see broad-based coverage from leading global and domestic brokerages, reflecting strong investor interest and confidence in its growth outlook.
