Management Commentary:

“Viaz is evolving from a commodity-led tube business to a comprehensive tyre manufacturer. Tyres command significantly higher realizations compared to tubes, creating a strong opportunity for both revenue expansion and margin improvement. India’s tyre industry is largely replacement-driven, with over 70% of demand coming from the replacement market. This creates a stable and recurring demand cycle linked to the growing vehicle population across the country. Our legacy butyl tube business already benefits from high replacement frequency, as tubes are replaced more often than tyres. As Viaz expands into tyre manufacturing, the Company will participate in the same recurring demand ecosystem, but with substantially higher ticket-size products and stronger revenue potential.

The upcoming 1,50,000 sq. ft. manufacturing facility in Mehsana, expected to be operational in CY2026, represents a major milestone in Viaz’s expansion journey. The new plant will enable the Company to manufacture tyres across multiple categories including 2W, 3W, LCV, and Agri/Farm segments. This significantly broadens the Company’s total addressable market at a time when India’s tyre industry is projected to grow from USD 13.4 Bn to USD 27.6 Bn by 2033, supported by an estimated 7–8% CAGR. The facility positions Viaz to participate in four high-growth categories simultaneously, strengthening its long-term growth outlook.”

PRESS RELEASE

Growth Outlook:

Driven by a planned capex of ₹50-55 Cr and the commissioning of the new Mehsana facility, Viaz Tyres is entering its next phase of accelerated growth. The Company is strategically expanding into higher-value tyre categories across 2W, 3W, LCV and Agri segments, positioning itself to benefit from rising replacement demand, import substitution opportunities and increasing domestic manufacturing focus. With revenues targeted to scale from ₹50 Cr to ₹350 Cr by FY29, the business is also expected to achieve stronger operating leverage and margin expansion. Importantly, the Company has significantly improved its working capital cycle and has become CFO positive, reflecting improving cash generation and operational efficiency. Going forward, management remains focused on further strengthening cash flows and improving working capital efficiency multifold to support sustainable long-term growth.
