Applied Materials unveils $5-billion India chip plan

OJASVI GUPTA & ASHUTOSH MISHRA
Mumbai, September 17

APPLIED MATERIALS' $5-BIL-LION investment in India by 2035 will help create the supply-chain capabilities, research, talent and required to support the country's semiconductor ambitions, Chief Operating Officer of Applied Materials India Radhika Viswanathan said.

The US semiconductor equipment maker's investment will be centred around infrastructure and talent. "Before we can think through anything, these are the basic foundational steps that we have to do: set up our R&D ecosystem, expand our R&D ecosystem, bring in our ecosystem partners to help set up that R&D ecosystem, extend it into our localised supply chain," Viswanathan told FE.

A major portion of the investment will go towards expanding Applied's R&D footprint and laboratory capabilities in India. The firm currently has an active lab space in Ben-

While India has significant semiconductor design talent, it currently lacks workers trained to run cleanrooms and manage manufacturing processes and equipment inside fabs and foundries galuru, alongside cleanroom capabilities for 300-mm wafer processing. Applied is also looking to develop a proposed 140-acre Advanced Semiconductor Research Park in Bengaluru. The facility will bring together cleanroom infrastructure, equipment engineering and collaborative R&D, while helping build a wider supplier ecosystem. "We will first expand our own R&D lab strategy. Next, we will expand our ecosystem base, because in this industry you can't be successful by yourself," Viswanathan said. The company plans to expand its supply-chain capacity tenfold by 2035 and grow its network to more than 100 production and R&D suppliers. It will seek to progressively move from sourcing components to building complex modules, sub-systems and eventually full systems in India. Talent will be the other major leg of the investment. Viswanathan said that while India has significant semiconductor design talent, it currently lacks a large pool of workers trained to run cleanrooms and manage manufacturing processes and equipment inside fabs and foundries. Applied is working with IITs and other universities to develop specialised coursework. It has launched its Applied Certified Engineer and Applied Certified Technician programmes and plans to more than double its R&D workforce in India by 2035.

PM pitches India as 'new & trusted' chip manufacturing hub

Prime Minister Narendra Modi interacts with a participant at the Semicon India conclave in New Delhi on Thursday

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, September 17

PRIME MINISTER NARENDRA Modi on Thursday pitched India as a "new and trusted" semiconductor manufacturing destination, and highlighted the government's policy measures and regulatory reforms for the growth of the industry. "India is taking every step needed to become a preferred destination for the semiconductor industry," he said, inaugurating the fifth edition of the Semicon India conclave here. The Prime Minister bracketed the chip push with the country's broader economic growth momentum: "On one hand, India's economy is growing, and on the other hand, the world's trust in India is also increasing." Highlighting the progress since the India Semiconductor Mission was launched in 2022, he said the sector has moved from policy formulation and project planning to commercial manufacturing. "Now chips are coming out of India's plants and reaching customers in India and the world," he said, hailing industry leaders as "pillars" of the success. "India has started the second phase of the Semiconductor Mission. The size of our first phase was about $8 billion, while the second phase we have set at $13.5 billion. Moving on the Reform Express, we have made further reforms in this sector" allowing collaborations between international companies and Indian startups and design companies, he said. "The world is looking for new and trusted manufacturing destinations; India is steadily preparing itself to meet this need," Modi said, urging industry leaders to deepen domestic research and development and encouraged Indian researchers working overseas to contribute to advanced technology development in the country.

Tata Electronics deepens semicon play with 16 pacts

ASHUTOSH MISHRA
New Delhi, September 17

TATA ELECTRONICS announced seven partnerships across the semiconductor value chain, including with Nexperia, Besi and Fujifilm, on the first day of Semicon India on Thursday, and is set to sign nine more agreements during the three-day conclave. These 16 partnerships include domestic and global markets and will cover activities across Tata Electronics' semiconductor projects in Dholera, Gujarat, and Jagir Road, Assam, CEO and MD Randhir Thakur said at the inaugural session of the event. India now has 12 semiconductor factories at different stages of completion and is already exporting made-in-India chips, he said.

At Tata Electronics, Thakur said there was "rapid progress" across its greenfield projects, including the Dholera fab and the packaging facility in Assam, with the projects on track to meet the commitments made to the government. The company has created more than 150,000 direct jobs, with women accounting for 65% of its workforce, he said. In Dholera alone, Tata Electronics has brought together more than 450 ecosystem partners spanning construction, equipment, chemicals and materials to build the fab. Thakur also highlighted the broader expansion of India's electronics industry, which he said has grown from ₹2 lakh crore in 2014 to more than ₹13 lakh crore in 2026. The recently announced Semicon 2.0 policy, he said, would act as a catalyst for localisation of the semiconductor ecosystem. "The factories we are building today will become your workplace tomorrow," he said, referring to the growing demand for skilled talent. Of the seven partnerships announced on Thursday, Tata Electronics and Nexperia will collaborate across wafer fabrication, assembly and testing, technology and ecosystem development. It has also partnered with Fujifilm to develop the semiconductor materials ecosystem for the Dholera fab. Fujifilm plans to invest around ₹800 crore in phases to establish a semiconductor materials plant in Dholera.

Kaynes eyes $1-billion OSAT project under Semicon 2.0

OJASVI GUPTA
New Delhi, September 17

KAYNES SEMICON is looking to significantly scale up its semiconductor packaging business, with plans for a new $1 billion OSAT (Outsourced Semiconductor Assembly and Test) project in Gujarat under the government's India Semiconductor Mission 2.0, even as the company ramps up commercial production at its first unit. Among the areas being considered are advanced packaging and LED/micro-LED. The LED project could involve an additional investment of about $300 million. "We will apply for new projects under the mission's second phase, Semicon 2.0 — a corpus of about ₹9,500 crore, a proposal under the packaging pillar," Raghu Panicker, CEO, Kaynes Semicon, told FE.

Kaynes also plans to begin work on Unit 3 soon, with commercial operations expected next year. Panicker said that the Unit 1, running at a low-volume rate of about 3.6 million units a year, or roughly 300,000 units in a month, continues to serve AOS. "While, Unit 2 — with clients such as Japan's Fujitsu and Germany's Infineon, is on track to be ready for qualification by the end of November or early December, after which select products will move into high-volume production," he added. "High volume production will happen in Unit 2, the capacity for which is 1.2 billion units per year," Panicker added. The company expects the semiconductor business to generate ₹250-300 crore in revenue this year. It has already booked close to ₹100 crore, although revenue recognition is still at an early stage. Kaynes' anchor customer is US-based Alpha & Omega Semiconductor (AOS), for which it is packaging its IPM5 module alongside a newer IPM7 and additional packages. Kaynes started commercial production in March 2026, roughly a year after the company first supplied samples to customers. Under Semicon 1.0, the company has allocated an investment corpus of ₹3,307 crore to its semiconductor plant in Sanand, Gujarat. This capital is split across three progressive manufacturing units designed for rapid scaling. Kaynes said its semiconductor customers are bringing the technology required for their products, unlike a conventional technology acquisition model.
