871,700 FAMILIES HAVE $1 MN OR MORE: REPORT

Millionaire households jump 90% in four years

ALOKANANDA CHAKRABORTY
New Delhi, September 18

INDIA HAS 871,700 millionaire households with a net worth of ₹5.5 crore ($1 million) or above, up 90% from 458,000 in 2021, according to the Mercedes-Benz Hurun India Wealth Report 2025. The surge reflects India's rapidly expanding affluent base, driven by strong equity markets, entrepreneurship, and urban economic growth, said the report.

The period between 2017 and 2025 has been transformative, with the number of Indian households worth over $1 million surging 44% and those with a net worth of $1.2 million-plus rising 202%. "This democratisation of prosperity speaks to the resilience of our economy, with opportunity spreading to millions of new wealth creators," said Anas Rahman Junaid, founder & chief researcher, Hurun India. Drawing comparisons to the report stated that while China had a much larger base of wealthy households than India — often 3 to 6 times higher across comparable categories with its demographic advantage, India is now placed to become the world's fastest-growing wealth hub, gradually closing the gap with its bigger neighbour.

Maharashtra led the race with 170,000 millionaire households — a 194% growth since 2021 — with Mumbai alone being home to 142,000 millionaires. According to the report, the surge is largely thanks to a 55% growth in Maharashtra's state GDP to ₹40.5 lakh crore, or $480 billion. Mumbai is followed by New Delhi, which has 68,200 millionaire households and Bengaluru, which has 31,600 millionaire households. The three cities, according to the report, form the largest concentration of affluent families in the country. The top 10 cities, including Ahmedabad (at No. 4) and Kolkata (at No. 5), contribute over 79% of the country's millionaire households, with growth fuelled by rising gross state domestic product (GSDP) and business formalisation across tech, finance, and industrial sectors. That said, upward mobility into the ultra-high-net-worth (UHNW) brackets was more selective. Roughly 5% of 2017 millionaires progressed to the ₹100 crore ($12 million) club, while only 1.3% reached ₹200

Phase III of eCourts on the fast track

JYOTSNA BHATTNAGAR
Ahmedabad, September 18

QUIETLY AND UNOBTAINABLY, the judicial services in the country are creating milestones on their journey towards fulfilment of the government's ambitious ₹7,210-crore Phase III of the eCourts project. Last week, the Delhi High Court (HC) launched its mobile app, which allows access to its various services and data on a mobile phone along with a host of other initiatives including a dedicated portal for judicial officers, an eOffice pilot project and the onboarding of MCD (Municipal Corporation of Delhi) appellate tribunal/juvenile justice boards on the eCourts system.

On the scale of larger implementation parameters, the Allahabad and Bombay High Courts are leading in terms of reaching many subordinate courts under the Phase III infrastructure. The HCs of Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh, and Gujarat are also doing well, but slightly behind the top two, in raw numbers. Says Justice (retired) DY Chandrachud, former Chief Justice of India who is credited with giving a strong impetus to execution of the project on ground, "Each step towards digitisation is also a step towards greater transparency. It replaces the colonial model where citizens had to go in search of justice with a model where justice related services are delivered to the doorsteps of citizens."

Extolling the numerous benefits of the project, Justice (retired) Chandrachud adds,

TOWARDS TIMELY, FAIR, AND ACCESSIBLE JUSTICE

Key components of eCourts Phase III	Cost estimate (₹ cr)
Scanning, digitisation and digital preservation of case records	2,038.4
Cloud infrastructure	1,205.23
Additional hardware to existing courts	643.66
Infrastructure in newly set-up courts	426.25
Virtual courts	413.08
eSeva kiosks	394.48
Paperless court	359.20

"This phase has been designed after multi-stakeholder consultation between civil society and domain experts. It is by far the most ambitious project implemented by the Indian judiciary. Phase III is on course to make our judiciary citizen-centric and focused on access to justice in a natively digital environment."

Interestingly, it is the Chhattisgarh HC which is fast emerging as a leading court in the mission nationally with its recent steps like digitisation centres, video conferencing facilities and e-summons in criminal cases — crucial steps towards digitisation of court records.

From the point of view of law firms, among the crucial stakeholders in the project, Pallavi Shroff, managing partner of tier-1 law firm Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas, says, "Use of technology and AI brings in transparency and helps in categorisation of cases and consistency in decision making. Furthermore, it will also help in reducing the backlog in courts with better access to past precedents and data. It is ultimately a step towards access to timely justice." Launched in 2023, the initiative seeks to create paperless, AI-driven courts across all district courts and high courts. Anshul Vikram Pandey, founder and CEO of PanSeismic Innovations which has developed Nyaya AI, one of the most sought-after AI platforms curated specially for the judiciary, said, "India's judiciary faces an unprecedented backlog of over 50 million pending cases. Phase II of the e-Courts project is already underway, and it has the potential to be transformative but only if it is anchored in a homogenous Legal AI Stack context-aware, privacy-first, and designed to enhance judicial workflows rather than disrupt them."

Unlike earlier phases, Phase III emphasises decentralised execution, stakeholder collaboration, and global benchmarking, with a strong focus on AI-powered case management, predictive analytics, virtual hearings, and end-to-end digitisation of court records.

Justice (retired) Chandrachud headed the eCommittee for nearly five years and brought a radical transformation in the deployment of technology. Among the innovations included cross-section of judges and lawyers that FE spoke to, are causing delays in speedy implementation of the project. (Continuing part tomorrow)

BISWAJIBAN SHARMA

FOR MANY WOMEN professionals in India, taking time off for motherhood still comes at a steep cost. A new survey shows that maternity breaks and workplace bias remain the biggest barriers to pay parity, with the IT sector topping the list for wage inequality. According to job platform
