Practo bets on healthcare infra for durable growth ahead of IPO

ANEEHS HUSSAIN
Bengaluru, May 24

Practo is increasingly repositioning itself from a doctor-discovery platform into a broader healthcare infrastructure business ahead of its planned 2027 listing, betting that software and provider-side services can create more durable economics than consumer-led healthcare models.

The shift comes at a time when several digital healthcare businesses have struggled to convert scale into sustained profitability. Consumer-facing platforms typically rely heavily on customer acquisition spending and transaction volumes, while software and infrastructure businesses tend to generate recurring revenue and create deeper relationships with providers.

Practo itself went through a period of slower growth while reshaping the business. Revenue remained largely flat at ₹242 crore in FY24 and ₹234 crore in FY25, but the company reported its first full year of operating Ebitda profitability at ₹15 crore in FY25, as against a loss of around ₹100 crore two years earlier. The company now expects revenue to nearly triple by FY27, including contributions from planned acquisitions in India and international markets. "We have remained profitable through FY26," founder and CEO Shashank ND told FE. Practo is also reported to be in discussions to raise up to ₹1,070 crore in a pre-IPO funding round.

According to the company, provider-side operations now contribute around 80% of total revenue and have compounded at roughly 35% between FY22 and FY26. Practo's hospital information system and clinic software products together operate across more than 1,400 healthcare facilities and over 20,000 practitioners across 15 countries. The broader platform now covers more than 1.1 million providers across over 680,000 establishments, handling around 10 million appointments annually and more than 100,000 teleconsultations a month. It has also expanded into diagnostics, surgery coordination and e-pharmacy services around its

The changing revenue mix offers a clearer indication of the transition.

Shashank ND, founder and CEO, Practo

Analysts tracking digital healthcare businesses said software and infrastructure businesses generally offer more predictable economics because revenue tends to be recurring and provider relationships are harder to replicate than consumer traffic. However, they cautioned that infrastructure businesses still need to demonstrate operating leverage and sustainable growth.

"Software businesses can create stickier relationships and lower customer acquisition costs over time, but investors will eventually look for evidence that these products are translating into stronger economics rather than simply expanding the number of services offered," an analyst said. More recently, Practo launched an API-led outpatient infrastructure business.

DMRC expands global outreach

COUNTRIES INCLUDING ISRAEL, Egypt and Kenya have approached Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) for possible collaboration in metro projects, with the corporation now looking to expand its international presence through a dedicated overseas arm as it seeks additional revenue to modernise ageing infrastructure in the national capital, Managing Director Vikas Kumar said.

Kumar said DMRC is currently associated with metro projects in Dhaka, where it is providing consultancy support, assisting in project execution and helping in operations and maintenance (O&M). He said countries such as Israel and Egypt had approached DMRC in the past regarding possible metro collaborations. Some African nations, including Kenya, had also shown interest in engaging with the corporation, though discussions have not progressed further.

To strengthen its international operations, DMRC has formed Delhi Metro International Limited (DMIL), a separate company focused on securing projects abroad. "Now we are trying very aggressively to get some contracts abroad," he said.

Hero MotoCorp to solidify leadership: CEO

TWO-WHEELER MAKER
Hero MotoCorp is confident of strengthening its leadership with a double-digit growth in FY27, during which it expects to launch over 12 new products, according to CEO Harshvardhan Chitale.

The company sees its scooters, which have witnessed strong demand for both internal combustion and electric versions, as one of the "growth vectors" and expects over 50% of its overall scooter sales to be electric by 2030, Chitale said.

With low emission power-trains emerging as a trend across the industry, he said, Hero MotoCorp is also working on a variety of options "to stay ahead of the curve" as a market leader. "So far we are leading, and we hope we continue to do so going forward," he said when asked if Hero MotoCorp is ready to defend its leadership position as competition intensifies in the two-wheeler market.

While declining to comment on competitors, Chitale said, "We will stay focused on doing what's right for the customer. We stay focused on offering the most efficient, most safe products. We have a great momentum so far. I can't talk about others, but I can talk about confidence in our channel, our products."
