Bernstein bets big on Indian wealth managers

PUNEET WADHWA
New Delhi, 24 July

Global research and broking firm Bernstein has turned bullish on asset/wealth managers Nuvama, 360 One Wealth (“Outperform” rating for both), and Anand Rath i Wealth (“Market-Perform” rating) as it bets on the growing wealth of Indians.

Wealth management in an emerging market (EM), Bernstein said in a recent report, might appear to be an oxymoron, but the rising wealth of India's uber-rich (over $2.7 trillion at the last count) provides the perfect pathway for a multi-year secular scale-up opportunity for the organised wealth managers.

Household wealth, according to the Bernstein report, is highly concentrated in India, with top 1 per cent households controlling around 60 per cent of the total wealth in India. Although growth will continue to create opportunities across the pyramid, Bernstein thinks the rich will get richer over time.

India's uber-rich — an estimated around 3 million households — hold $2.7 trillion in liquid financial wealth. Until now, most wealth was self-managed, or managed by unorganised players. This, Bernstein analysts feel, will change as rising return expectations, and product complexity will trigger demand for professional advice going ahead.

“We see specialised wealth managers benefiting, with a long growth runway. We expect specialised wealth managers to expand from $300 billion in assets under management (AUM) to $1.6 trillion over the next decade, implying an over 18 per cent compound annual growth rate (CAGR),” wrote Manas Agrawal and Himank Sangai of Bernstein in a recent note.

At the bourses, meanwhile, Anand Rath i Wealth and Nuvama Wealth have outperformed the Sensex (up around 6 per cent) thus

Bullish stance

	Nuvama Wealth	360 One Wealth	Anand Rath i Wealth
Rating	Outperform	Outperform	Market-Perform
Bernstein 12-month target price (₹)	9,790	1,410	2,580
Target price implied valuation multiple FY28E (x)	22.6	31.5	35.3
Consensus target price (₹)	8,548	1,288	2,100

far in calendar year 2025 (CY25) with a gain of 36 per cent and 12 per cent, respectively. 360 One Wam, however, lost 10 per cent during this period, ACE Equity data shows.

At a macro level, the wealth management industry, Bernstein feels, is seeing early movers scale up. This surge, it says, is reminiscent of the advent of private banks in India during the late 1990s — a period that set the stage for one of the most significant episodes of value creation.

“Over the long term, the industry will consolidate, with a handful of dominant players emerging ahead of a long tail of smaller players. We favour wealth managers with a higher proportion of distribution business, as this segment delivers predictable and sticky growth,” Agrawal and Sangai wrote.

Among the lot, Nuvama Wealth is Bernstein's top pick (12-month target price ₹9,790; upside 26 per cent), given the road ahead for its wealth management for high/ultra-high network clients, clearing services, and asset management business verticals. “While near-term headwinds are expected due to ongoing regulatory actions impacting one large client, we remain positive on medium-term growth, expecting around 25 per cent profit growth and 29 per cent return on equity (RoE) beyond a softer FY26,” the note said.

The recent move to expand beyond top cities and into the large high network individual (HNI) space with acquisitions and a strategic partnership with UBS augurs well for 360 One Wealth (12-month target price ₹1,410; upside 23 per cent), Bernstein says, expecting around 20 per cent pre-tax profit growth, with RoE at nearly 20 per cent by FY28, despite the drag from equity infusion/issuance.

MULTI-FACTOR FUNDS

Opt for fund run by quant model to beat fund manager risk

SARBAJEET K SEN

While passively-managed multi-factor funds that track a multi-factor index have been around for some time, now several fund houses are launching multi-factor funds that do not track an index. Instead, all portfolio-related decisions are taken by a quant model. New fund offers of Sundaram Multi Factor Fund and Bandhan Multi Factor Fund hit the market recently. Mirae Asset Mutual Fund is reportedly planning a similar offering through the fund-of-funds route.

Single versus multi-factor strategies

Single-factor index funds mimic indices based on a single factor, like quality, momentum, or value. The problem with such strategies is that they can underperform during certain periods. “If you have invested only in one factor strategy then your entire portfolio might go through prolonged underperformance when these factors or styles go out of favour,” says Jiral Mehta, manager—research, FundsIndia.

Multi-factor strategies combine several factors into one fund. Their advantage is that when one factor is underperforming, the other could perform. “Over time, multi-factor funds are expected to deliver stable alpha, making them an attractive proposition for long-term allocators,” says Anand Radhakrishnan, managing director and chief executive officer, Sundaram Mutual Fund.

These funds offer true diversification. “The portfolio is split among various factors as opposed to funds which, even though they may be diversified across sectors, stocks and the market cap curve, may not be diversified across factors,” says Radhakrishnan.

Risk and volatility tend to go

Weigh the pros and cons

- Rule-based approach
- No scope for human error
- Multi-factor based, hence suited for varied market conditions
- But no track record available
- A quant model that has worked in the past may not work in the future
- Good back-tested results do not always translate into sound performance in real market conditions down and the investor has a more stable experience. “Multi-factor funds reduce risk by spreading exposure, leading to more consistent performance and lower volatility,” says Sirshendu Basu, head—products, Bandhan Mutual Fund.

Rule-based approach

These schemes do not track a passive index. All decisions are made by a model, with no scope for human discretion. “Multi-factor funds offer a rule-based, data-driven approach that is expected to enhance portfolio performance. The model determines stock selection and weightages based on predefined factors,” says Radhakrishnan.

“A systematic, rule-based investment approach reduces the risk of human error,” says Basu.

Risks remain

Despite the benefits of a rule-based approach and diversification, risks persist. It could arise from the quant model being used. “Models rely heavily on historical data and assumptions that may not hold in changing market conditions,” says Basu.

Frequent rebalancing could result in a higher turnover. “This could increase transaction costs, which may erode net returns over time,” says Basu.

Stay invested for long

Experts recommend a long investment horizon to allow these funds to ride through at least one market cycle. “These funds are suitable for patient, long-term investors (seven years or more) who can stick to the overall strategy,” says Mehta. Most of these funds, however, do not have a track record. “We prefer funds built on proven investment factors and a strong real-world track record,” she adds.

Investors should cap exposure to them at 10 per cent of their core equity portfolio. These funds are quite similar to the quant funds launched by several fund houses earlier. “There could be an overlap between how quant funds and these multi-factor funds are run. If you already own quant funds, then watch out for overlaps within your portfolio,” says Vishal Dhawan, chief financial planner, Plan Ahead Wealth Advisors. He also suggests checking the expense ratio: if they are on the higher side, that could make it harder for these model-based funds to generate an alpha.

Aadhaar for rent agreements? What the law says

Many tenants and landlords are puzzled over the requirement of Aadhaar in rent agreements.

Some ask for it during registration, others complete the process using other ID proofs.

Experts say that Aadhaar is not legally mandatory for rent agreements. Instead, landlords and sub-registrars often accept alternative documents such as passports, voter ID or PAN cards.

Concerns about data privacy and fraud have also made some wary of relying on Aadhaar alone.

No law makes Aadhaar compulsory

“There is no law that makes Aadhaar mandatory for rent agreements. The Supreme Court has ruled that it is not a mandatory form of identification and has limited its mandatory use to certain government schemes only,” explained Apeksha Lodha, partner, Singhania & Co.

Keyur Gandhi, managing partner at Gandhi Law Associates, added, “Neither the Registration Act, 1908, nor any specific state rules mandate Aadhaar as a compulsory identity proof for property transactions. The UIDAI itself has consistently maintained that Aadhaar is voluntary.”

Fraud fears and why Aadhaar is avoided

Fake Aadhaar cards and privacy concerns have led landlords and registrars to prefer other IDs.

“Fake Aadhaar cards have been used for renting or selling property, so landlords often prefer documents like passports or PAN, which seem more traditional for identity verification,” Lodha said.
