Designit Expands Operations with New Studio in Sydney, Australia

Sydney, Australia – August 5, 2019: Wipro Limited (NYSE: WIT, BSE: 507685, NSE: WIPRO), a leading global information technology, consulting and business process services company, today announced that Designit, its strategic design arm, has opened a new studio in Sydney to expand its Australian operations and meet growing business requirements in the region.

Local UX pioneer, Katja Forbes, has been spearheading the global strategic design firm Designit's expansion in Australia and New Zealand. The new Sydney studio, set up as part of Designit's expansion plans, is located in Surry Hills and will open August 7.

Designit entered the local market earlier this year following the acquisition of high profile UX brand 'Syfte' founded by Katja Forbes. This expansion further increases the design and innovation capabilities available for Asia Pacific clients.

The opening of Designit in Sydney was significant because it reflected the maturity of the Australian interaction design industry to offer innovative solutions for businesses.

Designit helps clients of all sizes identify, explore, launch and scale new businesses, disrupt industries, and create new revenue streams. Wipro Digital and Designit serve clients from 18 digital pods around the world.

Katja Forbes, Managing Director, Designit, said, "The new studio space is indicative of our attitude as an industry leader – we are here to create a human shaped world, using emerging technology at its best, for our clients, and allow enterprises in Australia and New Zealand to have the ability to create extraordinary and distinctive experiences."

The opening ceremony of Designit Sydney will be attended by Ian Oppermann, NSW Government Chief Data Scientist and CEO of NSW Data Analytics Centre, as well as design industry peers.

What: Official opening of new Designit office branch

Where: Level 2, 44A, Foveaux street, Surry Hills

When: 7 August 5 – 7pm
