Cement makers build on volumes, hit margin wall

Input cost inflation seen overshadowing better pricing, sales in Q1

PRACHI PRASAD
Mumbai, 13 July

Top Indian cement firms are expected to report healthy volume growth for the first quarter (April-June) of 2026-27 (FY27), driven by robust infrastructure activity, a delayed monsoon, and a favourable year-on-year base. However, a sharp rise in fuel and other input costs following geopolitical tensions in West Asia is likely to weigh on profitability, limiting the benefits of better realisations.

"The quarter is expected to be reasonably healthy from a demand perspective, with volume growth of around 8.2 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y). However, profitability is likely to come under marginal pressure sequentially because of rising input costs and operating leverage," said Raghav Maheshwari, research analyst at EquiResearch Securities.

Industry volumes are estimated to rise, supported by demand from infrastructure and institutional projects, even-tier demand in Tier-II and Tier-IV cities, along with rural markets, remains relatively modest. A delayed onset of the monsoon also extended the construction season in several parts of the country, supporting cement demand.

According to analysts at J.M. Financial, volume growth is likely to be led by UltraTech Cement, Shree Cement, and JK Cement, each expected to register strong double-digit growth of more than 10 per cent Y-o-Y, outperforming the industry on the back of capacity additions and market share gains.

Dalmia Bharat is expected to post 9 per cent Y-o-Y growth. In contrast, Ambuja Cement is likely to report a 7 per cent Y-o-Y decline in volumes. Ambujas expected to be an outlier due to market share loss and a slower-than-expected ramp-up of acquired assets, according to Maheshwari.

Key projections

Q1FY27 estimates	PAT (₹ cr)	% chg Y-o-Y	Sales volume (Mtpa)	% chg Y-o-Y
UltraTech Cement	2,501	11	412	11.9
Ambuja Cement	445	-43.5	17.5	-7
Shree Cement	904	40.6	10.4	16.5
JK Cement	261	-19.6	6.4	16.5
Dalmia Bharat	212	-46.4	7.6	8.8

into Maheshwari.

Maheshwari added that volume growth in Q1FY27 should be supported by a favourable base, as Q1 of 2025-26 was affected by early rainfall. Regionally, demand was strongest in the North, followed by the Central, West, East, and South, according to a report by 360OneCapital.

Cement firms implemented multiple price hikes during the quarter to offset rising costs, although several increases were rolled back as demand softened in May. According to Akshay R. Shetty, equity research analyst at Mirae Asset Sharekhan, some regions witnessed weaker demand due to labour shortages, heatwaves, and the election period.

According to Kotak Institutional Equities, all-India average cement prices (adjusted for goods and services tax revisions) are estimated to have risen 4.4 per cent quarter-on-quarter (Q-o-Q) and 1.4 per cent Y-o-Y in Q1FY27. Despite the improvement in pricing, analysts expect earnings to remain under pressure as rising costs in petroleum coke (petcoke), imported coal, diesel, and packaging costs limit the benefits of better realisations. Average blended realisation is estimated to improve by 1 per cent Y-o-Y and 2 per cent Q-o-Q to ₹5,521 per tonne, according to Motilal Oswal Financial Services.

The brokerage further said fuel costs (coal and petcoke) increased sharply by 26-43 per cent Y-o-Y for Q1FY27 amid the West Asia crisis. Average earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortisation (EBITDA) margin is estimated to contract by 1.7 percentage points Y-o-Y to 15 per cent.

J.M. Financial expects its cement coverage universe to post 9 per cent Y-o-Y revenue growth, backed by higher volumes and better realisations. However, EBITDA adjusted profit after tax (APAT) are expected to decline 11 per cent and 10.8 per cent Y-o-Y, respectively, for Q1FY27. The country's largest cement maker, UltraTech, is expected to report PAT growth of about 11 per cent, driven by higher EBITDA and better realisations. According to Motilal Oswal Financial Services, UltraTech may also register 9 per cent Y-o-Y growth in ready mix concrete revenue, while white cement revenue is expected to rise 10 per cent Y-o-Y.

How crypto investors can avoid regulatory, tax trouble

SANJEEV SINHA

Cryptocurrency investors continue to face regulatory and tax-related risks. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) favours a policy leaning towards the prohibition of these assets, while the income-tax (I-T) department has flagged under-reporting, use of offshore exchanges, private wallets, hard-to-trace peer-to-peer trades and valuation challenges, according to a recent report by Reuters. The department estimates that at the end of May 2026, nearly 30 million Indians held $21 billion (about ₹20,000 crore) in digital assets. Yet only about one-fourth of the 645,000 individuals who transacted in crypto in FY23 reported them in tax returns.

Heightened regulatory risk

The RBI's preference should not be treated as an outright ban already in force. However, future restrictions could affect buying, selling, transferring or converting crypto assets into rupees.

"Investors may get little time to respond to regulatory restrictions. Also, paying tax on cryptocurrency gains does not amount to government approval of the asset class, nor does it provide the regulatory safeguards available to traditional financial products," says Sanjeev Govila, certified financial planner and chief executive officer (CEO), HumFault Initiatives.

Limit exposure

Limit cryptocurrency to a small, high-risk allocation whose loss would not affect long-term goals. "Use only know-your-customer (KYC)-compliant, Financial Intelligence Unit-India (FIU-IND)-registered platforms, maintain complete records of every transaction, and exercise extra caution while using offshore exchanges or peer-to-peer platforms," says Govila.

How authorities track trades
The I-T department tracks trades through tax deducted at source (TDS), exchange information, the annual information state-

Checks to run before using offshore exchange

- Indian residents can trade legally on offshore crypto exchanges
- Verify that the platform's legal entity is not just its brand — is registered with the Financial Intelligence Unit-India (FIU-IND)

ment (AIS), banking records, assessments and investigations. "For transactions on Indian exchanges, tax authorities can easily match TDS, KYC and transaction records with tax returns. They may also trace offshore trades and private wallets through international information-sharing mechanisms," says Vishwas Panjari, managing partner, SVAS Business Advisors.

Since April 2023, virtual digital assets (VDAs) have been taxed at 30 per cent. Only the acquisition cost is deductible. Losses cannot be set off. "Failure to report crypto income can lead to reassessment, recovery of unpaid taxes with interest, penalties and, in cases of deliberate concealment, even prosecution. Taxpayers who discover reporting errors should voluntarily take corrective action before the tax authorities initiate proceedings," says Panjari.

Penalties for non-disclosure

For reporting attracts a penalty of 50 per cent of tax due, while misreporting attracts 200 per cent. Failure to deduct or pay TDS, for instance, on peer-to-peer (P2P) trades, can attract a penalty equal to the unpaid TDS. "Failure to disclose reportable foreign crypto assets under the Black Money Act may invite a ₹10 lakh penalty. Deliberate tax evasion can also lead to prosecution," says Panjari.

Keep records of P2P trades

P2P trades are harder for the tax authorities to detect. But they are taxed the same way as exchange-based trades. Taxpayers must report them. "Investors should maintain a complete audit trail, including wallet addresses, transaction IDs, bank or Unified Payments Interface (UPI) payment records, acquisition and sale details, and the basis used to determine the asset's value in rupees," says Panjari.

Consistent valuation method
Prices vary across exchanges, and no uniform valuation standards exist, so apply one method consistently. "Preserve exchange statements, wallet addresses, transactions IDs, timestamps and the asset's value in rupees at the time of each transaction. As tax scrutiny intensifies, detailed records will help investors report accurately and respond more easily to queries from the tax authorities," says Amit Agarwal, senior partner, Nangia & Co.

Exercise caution
Investors must comply with tax and reporting norms. "Maintain accurate records of every transaction. Keep abreast of regulatory changes. Investors with large or frequent crypto transactions should consider seeking professional advice to minimise the risk of tax or regulatory issues," says Agarwal.

EPFO simplifies PF transfer after job switch with two online options

The Employees' Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) has introduced a second online route for transferring PF balances after a job change, making it easier for members to consolidate their retirement savings.

The facility is available on the EPFO member portal after the member logs in with the Universal ID, verify the request using an Aadhaar-linked OTP and submit it online. Once approved, the balance is transferred to the current EPF account. EPFO has said some claims and transfer requests may continue to face delays as its recently upgraded systems stabilise.

What employees should do
■ Log in to the EPFO portal using your UAN

- Check your Member Service History for pending transfers
- Submit Form 31 online if transfer request exists
- Verify that your Aadhaar-linked mobile number is active to receive the OTP
- Transfer, instead of withdrawing, your PF to maintain service continuity and keep earning EPF interest.
