SCRIP CODE: 532386

07 May, 2012 -- Inatech, the global software and IT services company, has announced that it has appointed Jean-Hervé Jenn as CEO. Based at the company's UK headquarters, Jenn will be responsible for global operations in the UK and Europe, the USA, the Middle East and India.

Inatech is controlled by Calsoft's Parent Company Chemoil, the world's leading supplier of marine fuel, and a subsidiary of Glencore (LSX: GLEN), a global producer and marketer of commodities.

Inatech focuses on the implementation of Oracle and Microsoft solutions and bespoke software development. Leveraging the expertise of its parent companies, Inatech has also developed a suite of software programs for the shipping industry, including bunkering operations management and fuel procurement management platforms.

Jenn's focus will be on driving the global growth of Inatech by enhancing existing client relationships and improving the overall product and services portfolio.

"I am very excited that, in hiring Jean-Hervé, we have been able to attract a world class professional who has a 100% success rate in building large successful businesses," commented Fred Bendle, MD and CEO of Calsoft. "His experience and track record will be a real asset to the business."
