BSE revises Jio Fin price band to 20% from today

SIDDHANT MISHRA Mumbai, September 3

THE BSE HAS revised the price band for Jio Financial Services to 20% from the earlier 5%, effective Monday. It was among 10 stocks for which the exchange announced a revision in price bands.

Set by stock exchanges, price bands serve as limits for securities to curb extreme volatility in share prices.

In addition, the stock will no longer be in the trade-to-trade (T2T) segment. The stock is expected to be removed from the NSE indices this week, subject to the condition that it doesn't hit the upper or lower circuit in two consecutive sessions.

Analysts say that thanks to revision of the price band from 5% to 20%, chances of Jio hitting the upper/lower circuits are slim. According to Nuvama Institutional Equities, Jio could exit the NSE indices on Wednesday if it doesn't hit the circuit limit on Monday and Tuesday. Nuvama's

calculation suggests JFS' exit could lead to the sale of 105 million shares by Nifty50 pas-remains part of the

sive trackers.

However,

The stock will also no longer be in the trade-to-trade segment. The stock is expected to be removed from the NSE indices

MSCI and FTSE indices, without affecting this week inflow or outflow. JFS was removed from all BSE indices including the Sensex on September 1. In the final thirty minutes of trading, a total volume of around 64 million shares was observed, largely attributed to Sensex passive sellers. The removal was deferred owing to the stock hitting the lower circuit for the first four sessions after listing, mostly on account of selling pressure by index funds. However, over the past few trading sessions, the stock has reversed some losses. It has touched the upper circuits at times and avoided the lower circuits.

Re-inclusion in the BSE indices would be dependent upon the stock fulfilling parameters set by the exchanges, such as being listed for at least six months and trading in every single day, besides being in the stock futures segment.

JFS had earlier announced a partnership with BlackRock to enter India's asset management industry with an initial outlay $150 million each. At the Reliance Industries AGM held last week, it was announced that JFS would enter the insurance industry, offering life, general, and health insurance products.

Punjab & Sind Bank looks at ₹250-crore raise via QIP in Q3

STATE-OWNED PUNJAB & Sind Bank plans to raise ₹250 crore through share sale to institutional investors in the third quarter of the current fiscal.

"The bank has got approvals for capital raising of ₹250 crore via Qualified Institutional Placement (QIP) in the next quarter," Punjab & Sind Bank managing director Swarup Kumar Saha said.

It will help achieve the twin objective of capital raising and dilution of the government's holding in the bank, he said. Government of India holds a 98.25% stake in the bank, which was listed on the exchanges in 2010.

He said the government's nod is also in place for the capital raise. The bank had written to the Centre seeking its approval in May.

As part of a strategy to increase touch points and brand visibility, Saha said the bank is aiming for 2,000 branches and as many ATMs in the country in the next three years.

• KVS MANIAN, WHOLE-TIME DIRECTOR, KOTAK MAHINDRA BANK

'I don't see RBI raising rates at this point'

The outlook on the Indian economy looks positive. There are green shoots visible in the economy with capacity being built in sectors such as logistics, pharma and healthcare, says KVS Manian, whole-time director, Kotak Mahindra Bank. In an interview to Hitesh Vyas, George Mathew and Sandeep Singh, Manian says the current acceleration in inflation is due to transient items such as tomato and onion prices, and is unlikely to go out of hand. He feels the repo rate will stay at the current level. Given the tight liquidity condition, he believes that deposit rates may go up by 25-50 basis points over the year. Excerpts:

Given the global scenario, what is your outlook on the Indian econ-

Generally, the outlook for India looks positive. We will grow in the 6-6.55% range (for FY24). There has been some worry about food inflation, but I think it is mostly coming out of transient items like tomato and onion prices. I am not overly worried about inflation getting out of hand. It may be slightly more than expected at the beginning of the year but may not be high enough to warrant significant policy turnaround. It also means that policy rates will stay where they are. With inflation remaining elevated, the reduction (in rates) is out of the question. However, the market rates will be slightly higher than what policy rates indicate. My sense is that the liquidity in the banking system will be marginally tight, and therefore, the deposit costs will tend to rise.

There are talks about a monsoon deficit, which means food inflation can remain high. Do you think there can be some tightening by RBI if inflation persists? I do not see them (the RBI) raising rates at this point in time. As I have said, if food inflation is contributed by transient items, I don't think RBI will react unless they believe that it (high food inflation) will affect the core food items.

> How much increase are you seeing in deposit rates?

It is difficult to answer, but you should look at a 25 to 50 bps rise in deposit rates over the year.

Will this put pressure on NIM?

NIM (net interest margin) is a combination of multiple things. Will there be downward pressure on NIM for the banking system? The answer is yes. But having said that, on the asset side, you (banks) will also be able to pass on some rate increase (to borrowers). If costs rise, banks will try to pass it (rates) on. Banks will need to manage NIMs. The actual impact on NIM will change from bank to bank depending on how well they manage the mix of their asset and liability sides.

If you look at corporate loan growth, excluding bank lending to NBFCs, it has been in single digits for many quarters. The banking sector has relied on the retail segment to grow and I don't think that will change

The government is saying that private capex has started taking off. Do you agree with this?

We are seeing green shoots. All corporates are talking about investments, and it is a matter of time before investments start coming in. There are sectors where investments are beginning to happen. Some sectors like renewables, roads and infrastructure have seen investments even during the last few years. We have seen capacity being built in sectors such as logistics, pharma, healthcare and chemicals. For capex to take off, big corporates from sectors like cement and steel need to put up big capacities, which is probably still some time away.

Where are you seeing growth opportunities? At the sector level, the whole industry is banking on retail to grow rather than on corporate. If you look at corporate loan growth, excluding bank lending to NBFCs, it has been in single digits for the past many quarters. So, the overall banking sector has relied on the retail segment to grow, and I don't think that will change immediately. Most corporates are deleveraged and sitting on cash. Even for small brownfield investments, they are using cash they already have. Only large greenfield investments could bring back corporates to borrow from the market, but this will take time. In the interim, I think the reliance will be on retail to grow.

How do you see growth in your corporate loan book?

In corporate loans, we have always maintained we are fine with a growth of 15-20%. Our market share in the corporate segment is 2.5-3%, and we don't see any problem in gaining some more market share. Earlier, we had targeted large corporates, which we call corporate conglomerate group. We have made good progress in the segment and improved our share. But beyond a point when you keep growing in the same segment, there is a worry about concentration risk. Our current strategy is to grow the segment below that - large and mid-corporates. It is a segment where you can easily have a 10% share in lending; it gives us a good wallet share in multiple products and services of the corporate. We feel that the right risk-adjusted returns can be made in this segment, and we want to grow it.

You have earlier mentioned competitive pricing pressures in corporate loans. How is the situation now?

We are highly focused on risk-adjusted returns and always look at pricing vis-à-vis the risks that we take. Therefore, I would expect tenorand lower ratings to be priced well. But yes, we do see irrationality in that (pricing of loans). I don't think the markets are pricing it well. Competition can drive you to be irrational because you want a deal and book growth. As the cost of funds are likely to have an upward bias from here on, I hope it will drive more rational behaviour among banks as they will have to build their costs into pricing. I am seeing pricing getting more rational going forward. Full interview on www.indianexpress.com
